

Julia Michon (International Student, Term 3 2011)

At the beginning of my holiday in Australia I knew only the family I had come to stay with. Their sons went St James College and I was able to attend with them for one term. I was a bit scared of new culture and traditions. Day after day the group of my friends was becoming bigger. Most of them were patient, friendly and helpful. Even though English isn't my first language I was able to talk with other people. I was amazed at the way teachers are at St James. They helped me a lot. I will never forget the moments which I have spent at this College. I'm quite sure that my friendships which I've made in Brisbane will be kept forever. It is unusual for me to know people who are of different nationalities this is a really new experience.
